DEATH OF M. WORMSER.

An Early Resident of Whom Little Was Known.

M. Wormser died yesterday morning after a protracted illness, though during the most of it he was able to be about the street. His only living relative so far as is known and so far as he knew is a niece living somewhere in California, though he never saw her. He leaves a large estate believed by many who are more familiar with his business affairs to exceed $300,000. It consists principally of lands in the valley, acquired many years ago when they were very cheap. Mr. Wormser was probably the oldest living resident of the territory. He was a native of France and was 64 years old. He came to the coast more than thirty years ago and visited Los Angeles at a time when Spring street was occupied by corrals. Thinking the town was without a future he came to Arizona and engaged in merchandising at Wickenburg in 1863. He moved to the Salt River valley with almost the first development of this section. There was no other man in Phoenix whose face and figure was so familiar and there was probably no other of whose life so little was known, and there certainly was none other who was so grossly misunderstood. On account of his uncommunicativeness, his simple and coarse dress he was believed to be miserly. But those who did business with him and knew him best say that he was an opposite character and that he gave away in charity every year more than any other man in the county. He did not give indiscriminately or ostentatiously. The beneficiaries were people whom he knew to be worthy and were generally those with whom he had been acquainted years ago. It is said that for years he had been the main, if not the sole support, of a half dozen families. The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock this morning.

HANSON'S EXAMINATION.

The Testimony for the Territory Submitted Yesterday.

The examination of A. J. Hanson, charged with the murder of Carl Zech, was begun yesterday before Justice Johnstone. It was concluded on the part of the prosecution and was continued until this morning on the motion of the defense. The territory did not put in all its testimony, but as much as the district attorney's office believed would insure the holding of Hanson to the grand jury. The evidence was about the same as was presented at the coroner's inquest a week ago today. There was a slight variation in the testimony of one of the witnesses, Guy Collins, a brother-in-law of Hanson. Before he was called to the stand he informed the court that he had erred in his testimony at the inquest and desired to remodel his statement in accordance with facts, as he remembered them more clearly now than he did amid the excitement immediately following the killing. He prepared another statement, but on examination admitted practically what he had testified before. At the close of Hanson's examination the case against Aaron Powell held on a charge of assault upon Zech with a deadly weapon, will be taken up.

BUCKBOARD OBSERVATIONS.

In the Alfalfa Fields, Orchards and Cattle Ranges.

At Large, April 25.—(Special correspondence of The Republican.)—After mixing up with tunnels, crosscuts and drifts, stamp mills, smelters and cyanide plants, I concluded a change would be beneficial in a turn through the Salt River valley farms, from the lowly five-acre ranch to that of a section controlled by men of capital with a host of subordinates to plow, sow and reap.

Imagine an investigator of mining districts wading waist deep through an alfalfa field of eighty acres or more in search of a delinquent or a new subscriber. That was my experience within an hour after saying adieu to The Republican office. There is no crosscutting about this business.

Had occasion to "see a man," and in answer to a query propounded to the better half of the aforesaid, she directed me "to go down the road half a mile, then cross the Maricopa canal and follow it west one mile, cross a bridge and go south a mile to where you will find him mowing for Mr. —." I found the place and the lady of the house advised me to go out a half mile through the alfalfa and I did. He was mowing sure enough. Had a brief interview and was told to come around in a few days.

In the past three days I have had these interviews with slight variations. The last one was that the man of the house was down in the barley field with the boys trying to round-up a stray blind yearling. When I reached the scene of excitement I found the proprietor of a half section floundering with his saddle horse in a ditch, and a half dozen men with a forty foot rope trying to pull that poor forlorn calf over another ditch. Two men were coaxing and kicking, a dog was barking and there was general disorder. At last I lent a hand at that rope, and the frightened calf then and there got a move on himself, dumped into the ditch and with a pull altogether was landed high and dry to lie half an hour to gain strength. Then it strayed off, likewise the men and land owner.

But I am not telling of what I have seen in the past seventy-two hours. I have inadvertently overlooked many but they can find relief and The Republican at 36 East Adams street.

I don't know how many acres there are in cultivation in this big valley on the Salt River, but it must run into the millions. I am to judge by the oceans of alfalfa, acres of fruit, etc. I have seen west of Phoenix. I will not pretend to tell half I have noted in this letter, promising more thereafter.

O'Connor & Cottrell of Phoenix burned 160,000 brick last month for use in the opera house and 160,000 brick are being stacked to burn for the same building. A dozen men are on the scene, a mile east of Alhambra. Levi Burger was over on Billy Rice's big field helping the boys to get out hay, for you know that "hay is hay" just now at $7 f. o. b. and destined to California. All along the line they are rushing hay to the tracks at the nearest stations.

Alhambra is quiet, Messrs. Gray and Goodlander looking after the postoffice and the wants of travelers. Agent Holder is on deck a good many hours at the pretty station and Mrs. May is kept busy in providing the best in the house. I came too late today to enjoy her cooking and had to content myself with what Holder and Goodlander failed to devour. That's what Mrs. May said and I believed her.

The funny papers allude to Dusty Rhodes, and I am inclined to believe the office force would have recognized in me on my arrival at Glendale, a pretty good imitation of that much advertised individual who travels with Weary Willie. About the dustiest stretch of road to be found in the valley lies between Alhambra and Glendale. If this is doubted I can refer to those who have covered the distance. How I envied Billy Stormont of Glendale who daily sallied up the track on his wheel, remarking as he passed, "Where did you get that horse?" and "I'll see you in the sweet bye-and-bye in Glendale." This was cruel, but I had to take it. I will see my friend Monihon about this road business when I come in.

They are full of life at Glendale, for be it known that the bulk of the hay goes out of that station on the S. F. P. & P. and there are hogs and cattle and fruit to follow later on. Agent Winslow takes catnaps, meaning by that his night's sleep is disturbed at all hours. He is now like the soldier boy—"sleeping on his arms." Jerry Sullivan sent up two carloads of beehives to Jerome on Saturday morning and was to send out several carloads of feeders on Monday to eastern points.

The Improvement company's big fruit ranch at the corners is in charge of Mr. Hirst who has a new foreman on the ranch to look after things.

At the Bets brick yard, three-quarters of a mile beyond town on Grand avenue they will burn two kilns of 125,000 each for Dave Hollinger's new house. Mr. Bets' sons are superintending matters in the absence of their father, who is interested in mining claims several miles north of Vulture siding. The operations are in the nature of tunnels. The claims are in the San Domingo district. Gold is shown in good quantities. Sixty tons of ore on the dumps and a stamp mill to be pounding soon. Water has been scarce.

William Lossing, late of Minnesota, has leased the Sam Stoner place just north of the town. He is a practical bee man and has 100 hives he brought from Stoner. He is adding 100 true blue hives of his own make. Mr. Lossing brought to the place several head of Jerseys. He owns the five-year-old dark chestnut stallion, Sirius Mark, an inbred Hambletonian. Sirius is a grandson of Smuggler, with a record of 2:15 1/4, pacing. Olga Hartwood, the mother of Mr. Lossing's neat built horse, was killed by lightning when her son was but two months old and Mr. Lossing saved the youngster by snatching it away in the nick of time. Sirius Mark will be heard from this fall and next spring. Sirius Mark's father had a record of 2:13. Mr. Lossing is in Glendale district to stay.

FORT MONROE'S DEFENSES.

The Old Ordnance Supplanted by Modern High Power Guns.

Fort Monroe, Va., April 25.—Col. Hughes of the war department, Washington, has visited this place, and in company with Col. Frank and Col. De Mareilly, made a thorough inspection of this important outpost for the defenses of Washington and Baltimore.

While each of the officers named declined to give any information for publication, it was learned that Col. Hughes is entirely satisfied with the progress that is being made toward rendering Fort Monroe impregnable against any hostile fleet.

Some time was spent in examining the new defenses at Buckroe Beach, a piece of thickly wooded ground about one and one-half miles north of the fort, and in inspecting the extensive system of mines which has been and is being placed in the harbor between capes Charles and Henry. Work on the latter means of defense is conducted with the utmost secrecy, and no one except those actually engaged in it and a few officers of the rank of captain and above is permitted to learn anything whatever about it, and all are pledged to give no information whatever to inquirers.

At Buckroe Beach, where a large number of men are engaged in planting heavy mortars and disappearing guns, there is almost completed what will be one of the most powerful fortresses along the Atlantic coast, and every man who is expected to operate the guns is confident that no Spanish fleet can get beyond the range of their fire, any one of which is effective at ten miles.

Besides this, the old fashioned guns on the parapet are being rapidly replaced with 8-inch converted rifles, and rapid-fire guns are being mounted wherever it is deemed they can be made to perform good service. If the time arrives for so doing, it is believed the latter will be certain protection against the swift and supposedly dangerous little torpedo boats, which are reputed to have sufficient speed to enable them to elude the more deliberate fire of the big guns. The new guns will be mounted on the upper ramparts, facing both Hampton Roads and Chesapeake bay.

The mines above referred to will, when completed, command every foot of water over which a hostile fleet going north would have to pass. From the two mining casements at the fort, cables now run out to the expanse of water between the horseshoe and the fort, and other cables extend across the entrance to Hampton Roads. These cables are attached to submarine mines, which are of themselves almost sufficient protection to the fort.

The officers at the fort express the utmost confidence in the ability of the guns at their command to repulse a hostile fleet.

There are, however, hundreds of persons in this vicinity, and among them many who compose the garrison at Fort Monroe, who say they do not believe that the Spaniards will ever get near enough to attack the fort. It is their belief that the flying squadron is being held by the government in Hampton Roads for the purpose of taking care of any hostile fleet whose commander might take it into his head to try the capture of Washington or Baltimore.

The utmost energy is being displayed in the Norfolk navy yard and Newport News ship yards in preparing ships for war, but nowhere is there undue excitement.

BURIAL OF DR. TUTTLE.

Faithful in the Church, in His Profession and His Family.

The funeral of Dr. A. M. Tuttle took place yesterday afternoon from the First Baptist church. Dr. Tuttle died last Wednesday, but the funeral was postponed to await the arrival of the father and brother of the deceased, the former of whom lives at Cedar Rapids, Ia., and the latter at Chicago. They came yesterday morning. The first services were conducted at the church by Rev. Dr. Halsey, after which the procession started to the cemetery.

tery. The cortege consisted beside the relatives and friends of the dead, of the I. O. O. F., Daughters of Rebekah, Woodmen, Elks and Knights of Pythias, to all of which orders Dr. Tuttle belonged. Arriving at the cemetery, services were conducted according to the rituals of these orders. The concluding services were conducted by Dr. Halsey, who spoke of Dr. Tuttle as affectionate in his family, faithful in his profession, true to his church, and public spirited as a citizen. All who knew him—and his acquaintance was far extended—loved him and mourn for him. He was for years a member and officer of the Phoenix Baptist church, and labored earnestly to promote its prosperity. He was an honored member of many social organizations. To him friendship was more than a name. He will be missed not only in the home, but by friends and fraters numberless to whom his bright smile and cheerful words and hopeful thoughts were ever an inspiration and a benediction. This male quartette which sang at the funeral services for Dr. Tuttle was composed of Messrs. Bartlett, Barnes, Burtis and Coggins. Miss Halsey played the Mendelssohn funeral march. Chaplain Winfield Scott took part in the service.
